

The UN Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC) sets out rights which every child and young person's entitled to.

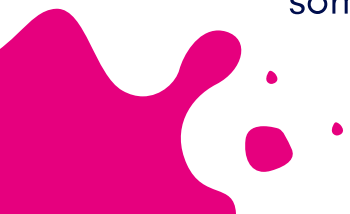

This year, it's turning 30 years old.

People across the world are celebrating this anniversary, but we've something else to be excited about in Scotland. The First Minister has committed to getting the UNCRC into Scots law, which means there will be more ways to take action when children's rights aren't being respected.

That's urgently needed, because there are serious human rights issues facing Scotland's children and young people today. And we'd like to hear from you about what those issues are by asking the following question:

WHAT DO YOU THINK IS THE BIGGEST CHILDREN'S RIGHTS ISSUE IN SCOTLAND TODAY, AND WHY?

If you're under 18 - or under 21 and care-experienced - visit cypcs.org.uk/thirty to see how to take part. We'll choose some of the responses to publish in celebration of the 30th anniversary.

If you use BSL you can take part by sending us a video, which should be no longer than 5 minutes. If you require any other reasonable adjustments please let us know.

TAKE PART BY: Monday 30 September, 5PM

MAXIMUM LENGTH: 500 words or 5 minutes of BSL

WHO CAN TAKE PART? Children and young people aged up to 18, or up to 21 if care experienced

Find out more and download an entry form at cypcs.org.uk/thirty

